Relying on Christ's own words, the Catholic Church has always held that the bread and wine brought to the priest in the offertory procession are changed into Christ's body and blood "by the action of Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit" when, at the consecration of the Mass, an ordained priest says over them the words Jesus said: "This is my body.... This is my blood."

February 9nd 2025

Confianto en las palabras del mismo Cristo, la Iglesia Catolica siempre a sostenido que el pan y el vino llevados al sacerdote durante la procesion del ofertorio se transforman en el cuerpo y la Sangre de Cristo por la accion de Jesuscristo y el poder del Espiritu Santo, cuando el sacerdote durante la consagracion pronuncia las palabras mismas de Cristo "Este es mi cuerpo ...Esta es mi sangre".

Getting Sent?

Isaiah in the Temple, Peter in the fishing boat, and Paul writing to his beloved Corinthians—what do they have in common? Each of this Sunday's three readings reflects on their experience of being commissioned as servants of God. As different as these three situations are—a Hebrew prophet in the Solomonic Temple, a Galilean fisherman surprised by an enormous catch, and a Greek-writing Pharisee reflecting on being a Christian convert—the three scenarios have startlingly similar elements.

Each of these men is confronted by an awesome manifestation of divine power. Isaiah of Jerusalem has a vision that he can only call “seeing the Lord.” Celestial beings called Seraphim (literally “burning ones”) sing the praise that we have incorporated into our Eucharistic Prayer: “Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts! All the earth is filled with his glory!” Thus the prophet comes to know God, not just as a local Near Eastern divinity but as the God of all, the one whose glory is shown in all creation. This becomes a major theme for this prophet and the successors who speak in his name: Yahweh, the creator of all, is the redeemer of Israel. For Peter, the awesome manifestation of the divine comes in the form of an amazingly abundant catch after a night of fruitless toil. As in the wine-sign at Cana, a surprising abundance follows obedient response to the command of Jesus.
